

Volunteer Role Profile

Volunteer Role	Member of the Cancer Voices Community
Volunteer Manager	National Involvement Team
Where you will be based	Home

Why we want you

We want to directly involve people with lived experience of cancer in Macmillan's work. The cancer voices community brings together individual people with personal experience of cancer, which they are willing to share to help achieve change. In partnership with Macmillan, cancer voices share their diverse lived experiences to influence our work. If you have personal experience of cancer and/or experience of caring for and supporting someone with cancer, we would love you to join the cancer voices community and bring your experience to a range of different projects and events.

What you will be doing

- It's up to you how active you want to be, you can dedicate as much or as little time as you wish. We regularly post new opportunities to share your experience of cancer to influence change, some are one-off activities, some are projects over several months. You can decide, based on how much time you have to offer, and which activities interest you

The skills you need

- You don't need specific skills or experience to be part of the cancer voices community; your key contribution is your personal experience of cancer and an interest in learning more about ways to influence what we do

What's in it for you

- Use your experience of cancer, care, and services to improve others' experience, help shape what Macmillan does and how we do it
- Learn about the work teams across Macmillan are doing
- Connect to other people living with cancer throughout the UK
- Receive a welcome call and the support you need to contribute to cancer voices projects

Disclaimer

Our vision is to develop a diverse and inclusive culture that empowers and enables everyone to be their best when giving time, energy and experience. We will strive to meet the different needs of people who choose to give their time, and work hard to improve accessibility - both face to face and online - to give everyone the best possible experience.